30 YEARS
THE NATIONAL LEADER AND PIONEER IN THE BLACK BREAST CANCER MOVEMENT

— EST. 1994 —

OUR HISTORY

Sisters Network® Inc. (SNI), is founded in by Karen Eubanks Jackson, 31-year four-time breast cancer survivor, a pioneer in the black breast cancer movement, National Breast Cancer Advocate and Speaker. Jackson is also and author of her memoir, In the Company of My Sisters: My Story, My Truth.

Founded in 1994, Sisters Network® Inc. is the oldest and largest national black breast cancer survivorship organization in the United States. SNI is the leading voice and the only national black-led survivorship organization with "boots on the ground" with over 25+ survivor-run affiliate chapters located in major U.S. cities. The organization is governed by an elected national Board of Directors, provided medical guidance by a national Medical Advisory Board.

OUR GOALS

- To amplify awareness and education that there is breast cancer crisis in the Black community
- Provide the education, support, advocacy and sisterhood through our extensive network of 25+ survivor-run affiliate chapters in major U.S. cities
- To improve black women's access to 3D mammograms, increase clinical trial participation and ensure black woman receive equitable breast healthcare and access to resources and information
- Advocacy: mobilize and provide policy and advocacy training to our affiliate network of survivors and Pink ambassadors to take action and advocate for policy change on the state and federal level to help save our Sisters' lives

OUR MISSION

Sisters Network® Inc. is committed to increasing local and national attention to the devastating impact that breast cancer has in the African American community.
